The HOPE Group Annual Memorial Service will be held this year on Wednesday, December 12, 2007 at 7:30 p.m. The service will be held in the Keating Conference Room, first floor, Baldwin Park I, 12 Alfred Street, Woburn, Massachusetts. The service will include music, poem readings, and a candle lighting ceremony. All parents, grandparents, and/or friends are invited to attend the service. Children who are old enough to understand the significance of this event are also invited. Refreshments will be served.

Directions: From Route 93 (North or South) take exit 37 for Route 128/95 South. From Route 128/95 South take exit 35 for Route 38. Once in the rotary, follow signs for Route 38 North/Wilmington. Take a right at the first traffic light onto Alfred Street. Baldwin Park I will be on your left.

Getting Through the Holidays After Miscarriage and Pregnancy Loss by Krissi Danielsson

I've written about miscarriages and the holidays in the past. Obviously Thanksgiving and Christmas can be tough for anyone facing miscarriages, particularly if you have had a recent loss. Everywhere you look you see emphasis on families and joy when you may just want to crawl up into a ball and hide someplace.

This might be particularly true if you have an extended family tradition of getting together for the holidays -- resulting in you having to listen to your Fertile Myrtle pregnant sister in law complain about her morning sickness with her fourth pregnancy in five years and laugh about her husband just having to look at her to get her pregnant. And your coworkers of course sending you baby shower invites left and right. So I wanted to address the subject again and discuss how to cope with the holidays when you're going through loss.

First and foremost, know that you do not have to apologize for your feelings. Probably the hardest part of surviving the holidays is surviving other people. You don't have to explain yourself, and you don't have to justify it to anyone if you're not feeling up to being cheerful. In some cases, it may be easier to try to put on a brave face for your relatives and not talk about your losses at all. Obviously I'm not suggesting that you shouldn't talk about it if you want to, but if you know beforehand that your relatives just don't get it, you might just be subjecting yourself to unnecessary grief by trying to explain it to them in the first place. Few people truly understand what you go through with pregnancy loss but even fewer people seem to understand that you don't always have to say something as far as advice, and that sometimes listening is enough. If your relatives are hopeless cases, perhaps changing the subject and ducking out early is the best solution to family gathering heartaches.

If your relatives don't understand what you're going through but seem to want to support you, don't be afraid to tell them what you need as far as support. Sometimes people want to help but don't know how.

And consider reading a grief coping book. Several new books of personal stories have been published recently that might help.

If you feel you need to hide from the world a bit during the holidays, that's okay -- but be on the lookout for signs of depression and please find someone to talk to rather than keeping everything bottled up inside. If you don't have understanding "real life" friends, consider joining an Internet discussion board (such as the one on this site) to network with others who are facing similar hardships. Having someone to talk to (or type to, as the case may be) will help you to feel less alone.

Try to find something about your life to be thankful about, also, and focus on that as much as possible to keep your spirits up. Perhaps you have a living child, a wonderful spouse, a really great job, or a fun hobby? Not that any of these things mean you shouldn't be grieving your loss, but it can sometimes help to remember when going through a rough time that not everything in your life is bad.

Support your partner through the holidays, also. Your partner may not always be forthcoming about his (or her) feelings and may need your support more than you know. And tell him or her what you need as far as support if you need more than you're getting. Know also that sometimes the partner who was not the ones who went through the pregnancy may not have been as connected to the baby and remember that people grieve differently.

If you haven't already done so, consider doing something to honor your baby as a part of the holidays. Plant a tree, or buy a toy for a needy child. One coping strategy I heard once upon a time from a mother grieving her stillborn daughter was that she planned to donate a toy every Christmas for a child the age her daughter would have been that year (although I can imagine this causing more grief in some cases, depending on where you are in the process). Or perhaps a special angel ornament for your Christmas tree with a date of your loss or any other memento of your baby.

Don't feel guilty if you are happy, which might sound odd, but sometimes we may come to feel that by enjoying ourselves we are somehow dishonoring the memory of our babies. Just as it's okay to feel sad, it's okay to be happy.

And when the new year comes, know that it is indeed a new year and the new year may bring new opportunities.

I Only Have Dreams by Kristen Grein

To Gordon, my son
 Who will no longer be one,

I can't believe how time has passed, soon you'll be turning two
 I find myself wondering what you would be doing and what you would be getting into.

Would you be content to sit and read a book?
 Or would you have to know everything to touch, listen, and look?
 Would your hair be blonde or red?
 Would it be straight or curly instead?

Would you sleep all night?
 Would you play with your sisters or always just fight?
 Would you be a hero in your little brothers eye?

Would you try to soothe him when he starts to cry?

What toys would you love and what would you play?
Would you watch TV or color on a rainy day?

I will always wonder but never really know,
But that doesn't stop me from loving you so!

Most moms have their memories, I only have dreams.
But living with fantasy is not as bad as it seems.

I imagine you're perfect and never bad.
You are always happy and you will never be sad.
You can never hurt and never feel pain.
You live where there is always sun and never rain.

You will always be protected and live safely within my heart.
You can be a billion miles away but we will never be apart.

Happy Birthday Gordon, I love you!

Pennies From Heaven - Author Unknown

I found a penny today
just laying on the ground,
But it's not just a penny
this little coin I've found,

Do pennies come from heaven
that's what my Grandpa told me,
He said Angels toss them down
oh, how I loved that story,

He said when an Angel misses you
they toss a penny down,
Sometimes just to cheer you up
make a smile out of your frown,

So don't pass by that penny
when you're feeling blue,
It may be a penny from heaven
that an Angel's tossed to you.

A Photo Retouching Offer from The National Stillbirth Society

The National Stillbirth Society have had so many parents ask how they might get their baby's picture retouched. In response to this need they have developed the Angel Pic Project. This project offers families a photo retouching of their stillborn baby AT NO CHARGE.

If you have a photo that you may have been uncomfortable showing family and friends, get ready. You'll be able to send a scan, if you have one, or you can look up a participating dealer in your area who will scan a photo for you (limit two) and they send it in for you. The same dealer will also give you a free 8" x 10" portrait when the scan comes back (in about two to three weeks).

This is just one more way the National Stillbirth Society is working to bring comfort and closure to stillbirth parents and their families. For more information on the Angel Pic Project visit the National Stillbirth Society at <http://www.stillnomore.org>

The Life of a Grieving Mother Author Unknown

To those who look away when I grow teary-eyed in the baby department, look a little deeper. Surely you have some compassion in your heart.

To those who change the subject when I speak my son's name, change your way of thinking. It just might change your whole life.

To those who roll their eyes and say that we barely had him at all, how could we miss him so much, in our hearts we have seen him live a thousand times. We have seen his first steps, first day of school, his wedding, and his children. We have had him forever in our minds.

To those who say we can have another, we did. I thank God for him everyday. But even if I have twenty more babies, I will forever have one in the grave, and that is one too many.

To those who say to get on with my life, I have. It is a different life, the life of a grieving mother. One with a tremendous amount to be thankful for, but also one with a lot to mourn the loss of!

in memory of our children and encourages people all around the world to light a candle at the same time for one hour. If you'd like to come together for this event, please join Barbara at The Children's Room, 1210 Massachusetts Avenue, Arlington, MA. HOPE thanks you!

Do not judge the bereaved mother. She comes in many forms.

She is breathing, but she is dying. She may look young, but inside she has become ancient. She smiles, but her heart sobs. She walks, she talks, she cooks, she cleans, she works, she IS, but she IS NOT, all at once. She is here, but part of her is elsewhere for eternity.

Do not dismiss us; we have shaped more than just the future generation.

We have released all the tiny angels who are watching over you.

Open your eyes to US, and you just might see THEM.

My Dear Angels by Wendy Ward

You lived in me, for too short a time
Yet I knew you well, sweet babies of mine

A flutter, a kick, a tickle too
I felt so much love, for both of you

So perfect you were, in every way
Just too small to live, on this earth today

You now live in Heaven and I know I will see
Your two precious smiles, when God calls me

Two babies I hold in my heart so dear
My son, my daughter, you'll always be near

So rest my dear angels, at peace you are
I know in my heart, that you aren't very far

It's never goodbye, for the day will come
When our family is together, our family as one

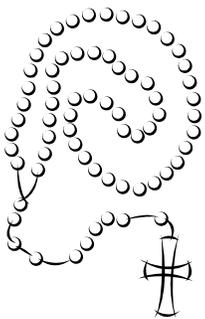

Your daddy and I miss you so much
All we wish was for one last touch

Of hands so small, tiny feet too
Delicate you both were, but at peace we knew

Love is all you have ever known
First here with us, and now in Heaven, your home

Good night sweet Christopher and little Noelle
We know you are angels, for we heard the bells

In loving memory of my twins
Christopher and Noelle

Forever Rosaries and More

Jacki Pazzia, a HOPE member, has started a business called "Forever Rosaries and More". The business makes treasured keepsakes from flowers from special occasions, weddings, births, communions, and/or funerals.

Jacki and Forever Rosaries will take flowers, crush them, and hand craft them into a beautiful pair of rosary beads. In addition to the rosary beads, chaplets, necklaces, bracelets, and/ or bookmarks can be made from the crushed flowers.

To learn more about Forever Rosaries and More, visit them online at <http://www.foreverrosaries.com> or contact Jacki at 1-781-316-1570 or foreverrosaries@rcn.com

To the Twins in our Hearts by Jackie D'Silva

O precious, strong, persistent ones
 You stayed alive until the end,
 Against all odds and trials sent
 You lived long
 Did what was meant.

You will always be to us
 So perfect, so pure, so innocent.
 We love you now and dream of you.

We so longed for your perfect health,
 So you could enjoy us, friends, and family.
 We never got much chance for that
 Or to laugh, to rock, to wiggle.
 We long to touch you yet again
 Or hear your faint breath jiggle.

Heaven's Brightest Star
A Book by Kara Glad

Do you know that more than 500,000 babies are born premature each year? Unfortunately, my first born, Ryan, was born premature at 24 1/2 weeks and only survived four days. Through this extremely difficult experience, I've gained the inspiration to share my story. I have written a book called Heaven's Brightest Star. Sharing this story has helped both my family and friends. I hope that our story will offer assistance to other families going through a similar situation.

Heaven's Brightest Star is an easy to understand book to share with children who have suffered a loss. This story is about a little girl named Katie, who is eager to become a big sister. Unfortunately, she quickly learns her new brother is a preemie, who is not strong enough to survive. The book explains the NICU to children and will help them understand that sometimes the young as well as the old pass away. I believe this book will serve as a special tool for parents to use in helping their children deal with a loss and assist them in their grieving process.

If you are interested in learning more about my experience please visit www.heavensbrighteststar.org. I hope my story can provide understanding, comfort, and help families feel less alone.

"We are given many precious gifts as we go through life. Some we are allowed to enjoy for a long time...others only briefly. But each gift has the power to change and enrich us, to make us better human beings." Author unknown

Please feel free to contact Kara Glad at kglad7@yahoo.com if you have any questions and/or comments.

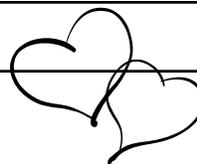

God tells us that won't happen but
 We'll always be your mom and dad.
 And your family who loves you dear.
 You're both gone, but your spirit feels near

We sense your presence everywhere.
 There's so much sorrow we employ,
 And there's love in our every tear.

Please know our love goes deep and strong.
 We shall forget you both not ever,
 The twins we had, but never had,
 And yet will have forever.

In loving memory of
 MeeLa and Emeel D'Silva

Messages of Love

- Baby Hope, Mary Alice, and Gloria - We think of you all the time and send all of our love and prayers, especially when we see the stars shine brightly in the sky. By now you've found a wonderful spot in Heaven to run and play and grow. Please look out for all of our current and future Rogers' babies and send them to us safely. With love from your whole family
- Mark, you will always be the wind beneath our wings. You are always in our hearts. We love you. Mom, Dad and sister Karen
- My dearest twins, today, September 25, 2007, is 40 weeks since your conception. You two, however, came out at 20 weeks and flew straight to Heaven. We don't know why and we could spend hours thinking about that or how life would have been had you stayed here on earth with us. We do think of those things, but we try to focus on living our time on earth in your honor instead. Our lives seem so out of order. I envision that is your gift to us in some way because if you two were here on earth the only thing I know for sure is our lives would have been out of their normal order. This disarray is different from what we had planned, but it is change none-the-less. Our hearts are with you as we continue to say you are no longer in my belly but in our hearts and our minds instead. Jackie and Eric D'Silva
- We love and miss you so much Nicholas. I think of you everyday and wish you were here. I am so grateful that I got to spend nine months with you as you grew into a precious little boy inside my tummy. Although I will never know why God took you from us, I've settled with the reason that you were just too precious for the world. I love you baby. Until we meet again you will forever be in our hearts. Love, Mommy
- Every "Auntie" thought is one of you. Love, love, and more love, Aunt Sandra
- John, I wish you could be here with us. I always talk about you all the time to Sophia and Anthony. I will never forget you. Love, Joseph, Sophia, and Anthony
- John, I love you and miss you my sweet boy. Xoxo Mom
- John, I still think about you every day. I love you so much little one. Dad
- In memory of our son Jack Patton Cassidy, 12/15/03. "Sleep here awhile thou dearest part of me. In little time, I'll come and sleep with thee." Dearest Jack, I can only dream and wonder about you. There will always be an absence in my life. I may not show it on the outside but I always feel it in my heart. You will always be my first baby, my first son, and my greatest loss. I lovingly look back on our memories and cherish them deeply, for that is all I have. I pray that you remember me, for it breaks my heart that you are not here with me. Our time together was too short. Sleep tight my angel. Love always, you Mom
- Sean, you are still with me everywhere I go. It has been ten months since we lost you, and there is still not a day that goes by that I do not think of you at least a dozen times it seems. I think of you every time I am in the car because you would be in the back seat. I think of you when I watch your brother and sister playing and laughing in the yard because you should be there too. I know they would be making you laugh as well. I think of you at family events, birthdays, cookouts, etc., because you should be at those too. You are a part of everything I do and every place I go. You should be with me and you are not. I did not realize how hard this would be. The rest of the world seems to have moved on, but I cannot. It is so unfair that you are not here. I used to joke with your dada about you being the "angel baby", the one that would sleep through the night. Your brother and sister were not so good at that. I never realized that my nickname for you would become a cruel reality. You are in fact my angel baby and I still cry, alone, for you. Love, Mommy.
- Sean, you are still so sadly missed each day by us all. We love you little angel, Mommy, Daddy, Emma, and Evan
- "A Mother's Love cannot be measured by increments of time, an entire lifetime of love can be squeezed into a few brief miraculous moments when necessary." Submitted by Mia Moran in memory of Jonathan Moran, born still on July 19, 2005.
- Dakota, not a day goes by that we don't think of you. You are our first thought when we wake and our last thought before we go to sleep. We love you and miss you each and every day. Love, Mom, Dad, Mason, and Madisyn
- Chase and Kenley, Mommy and Daddy miss you so much. We think of you everyday. We will tell your new baby sister about you. We love you and miss you. Love, Mommy, Daddy, and Brooklynn
 - Rhiannon Jacinta, August 24, 2007 to September 14, 2007: Mommy and Daddy miss you very, very much. I wish that the pain Daddy and Mommy feels becomes less and less each day. You were Mommy's little savior and always will be. Love you more everyday! Mommy
 - Baby Alex, May 2007: I will always miss getting to know you. I love you. Mommy
 - Julia, my sweet, watch over Gramma and keep her safe. I love you. Mommy

*How very softly
you tiptoed into my world. Almost silently;
only a moment you stayed.*

*But what an imprint
Your footprints have left on our hearts.*

"The mention of my child's name may bring tears to my eyes, but it never fails to bring music to my ears. If you are really my friend, let me hear the beautiful music of his name. It soothes my broken heart and sings to my soul."
